MSP and MIEMSS Convene Active Assailant Incident Workgroup

Recent incidents around the country have brought to light the need to ensure law enforcement, emergency medical services, and emergency management are collaborating to develop common plans for responding to an assailant causing or threatening harm with a firearm or explosive device. Recent literature suggests a rapid and aggressive response to subdue the aggressor and provide care to the injured—before a scene is completely secured—is necessary to prevent further injury and save lives. Such a response must be well coordinated between all disciplines and ensure no responders are forced into situations that threaten their safety due to inadequate security, lack of personal protective equipment or training, or the lack of a unified command structure. Additionally, general guidelines for response must be consistent across the state to ensure effectiveness, especially if multiple jurisdictions respond.

At the request of the Governor’s Office of Homeland Security, MIEMSS and the Maryland State Police (MSP) convened an interdisciplinary work group to investigate current literature on these types of incidents, suggest general guidelines for response, make suggestions to ensure adequate levels of protection, develop consistent learning objectives to guide response training across the state, and identify gaps and resources to address those deficiencies. The group consists of representatives the following organizations and agencies:

- MIEMSS
- MSP
- Maryland Police Training Commission
- Maryland Metropolitan Fire Chiefs
- Maryland State Firemen’s Association
- Maryland Coordination and Analysis Center
- Maryland Fire Rescue Education and Training Commission
- Maryland Fire and Rescue Institute
- Maryland Fire Chiefs Association
- Maryland Emergency Management Agency
- Federal Bureau of Investigation, Baltimore Office
- Governor’s Office of Homeland Security
- Local EMS Representatives (4)
- Local Law Enforcement Representatives (4)
- Local Emergency Managers (3)

The group had an initial meeting in November 2013 and will reconvene in January 2014. Its goal is to distribute preliminary recommendations on operational components to all local law enforcement agencies and EMS programs by the end of March with a final report, including training recommendations and a gap analysis of resources available, by June.

Questions about the group can be directed to TFC Travis Nelson at MSP (travis.nelson@maryland.gov) or John Donohue from MIEMSS (jdonohue@miemss.org).

Maryland Remembers Memorial

The 2013 Maryland Remembers Memorial, an annual event that honors the lives of Maryland citizens killed by impaired drivers, was held on Thursday, December 12 in Annapolis. Families and friends who lost a loved one to an impaired driving–related crash, partner agencies, and advocates were invited to attend the 10th annual service. A procession to honor those lives lost featured dozens of framed photographs held by family members and loved ones.

In the last five years, an average of 175 Marylanders have died each year due to impaired driving.

The 2013 Maryland Remembers Memorial, held on Thursday, December 12, remembered and honored those killed by impaired drivers and those who make efforts to prevent such tragedies. Jan Withers (pictured third from left in the bottom photo), National President of Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD), was the recipient of this year’s Kevin E. Quinlan Advocacy Award for her leadership in combating drunk and impaired driving in Maryland. She is pictured with, left to right, Lieutenant Governor Anthony Brown, Joan Quinlan, and Maryland Motor Vehicle Administration Administrator John Kuo.

Q. I have let my EMT certification lapse; how do I get it back?

A. The answer to your question depends on how long your certification has been lapsed. If your certification has been lapse for less than a year and you missed the December 31, 2013, renewal deadline then you will need to apply for reinstatement and obtain the required continuing education hours/skills within one year from when your certification lapsed. If your certification has lapsed for more than one year, then you will need to apply for reinstatement, obtain the required continuing education hours/skills, and retest for certification at the state level. Providers have up to three years to apply for reinstatement from the date that their certification lapsed. To access the application for reinstatement and for further information, visit http://bit.ly/JKzsyL.

Maryland’s Homeland Security Outreach Extends to Fire/EMS/EM Communities

The following article appears courtesy of David Lewis of the Maryland Coordination and Analysis Center. Many thanks to Mr. Lewis for his contribution to Maryland EMS News.

The Maryland Coordination and Analysis Center serves as the focal point between Federal, State, local, and private sector partners in the gathering, analysis, and dissemination of criminal and homeland security information. The MCAC produces a variety of intelligence products to meet customer intelligence needs and communicate critical information to pertinent stakeholders. MCAC is part of a network that includes the National Counterterrorism Center, the Terrorist Screening Center, Department of Homeland Security National Operations Center, and over 70 state and urban fusion centers across the US. Prompt and detailed reporting of suspicious activities can help prevent violent crimes or terrorist attacks. As a provider, if you see suspicious activity, you should immediately report it to your local police department. You should not attempt to conduct your own investigations or dismiss indicators as being unimportant. Local law enforcement officers can respond quickly. Once they assess the situation, they can obtain additional support. Suggest that local law enforcement follow-up with a report to the MCAC. You may also report suspected criminal/terrorist related activities directly to the MCAC at 1-800-492-TIPS (8477).

Since May 2013, the Fire/EMS/EM communities have been included in a larger role at MCAC with the addition of a dedicated Fire/EMS/EM intelligence analyst. David Lewis was recently added to a dedicated staff of intelligence professionals to address a critical gap in information and intelligence needs. David comes to MCAC with over 40 years of operational fire service experience, plus 10 years as a fire service instructor at the Maryland Fire and Rescue Institute. David also recently completed a term of office as President of the Maryland State Firemen’s Association, serving from 2011–2012. Since arriving at MCAC, David has developed a set of information/intelligence requirements specific to the needs of the Fire/EMS/EM communities and regularly distributes products to the leadership of those disciplines to enhance situational awareness and operational preparedness. For additional information, you may contact David at 443-436-7776 or email him at david.lewis@mcac.maryland.gov.

‘Tis the Season: Winterize Your Home to Save Money and Stay Safe

As the temperatures dip outdoors, you may want to crank up the heat indoors. But before you touch that dial, take these steps* to winterize your home to efficiently heat your living space. Then go put on a sweater.

• Insulate pipes with pre-manufactured insulation or newspapers and plastic.
• Allow faucets to drip a little to prevent pipes from freezing.
• Cover windows with plastic to keep the cold air out.

If you need added warmth, here is some advice to minimize risk of fire or carbon monoxide poisoning.

If you choose to use indoor space heaters to add warmth, be sure to use them properly to minimize the risk of fire. If you purchase a new space heater this year, be sure to get one that has an automatic shut-off feature as well as a tip-over switch. The heater should be placed on a level surface, at least 3 feet away from flammable items such as linens and curtains, and out of the reach of children and pets. Carbon monoxide poisoning can be a concern with certain space heaters, so be sure that the room has plenty of ventilation.

NEVER use your oven to heat your home. This can cause a deadly build-up of carbon monoxide, which is odorless and tasteless, and can kill within minutes.

Fireplaces and heating equipment such as wood burning stoves should be cleaned, inspected, and in good working condition before use. Make sure the fireplace or stove has a good screen installed to prevent ash and sparks from flying into the room. Ashes should be completely cool before putting them in a metal container for disposal outside (at a safe distance from the home).

Make sure that your home has working smoke/fire and carbon monoxide alarms. You can always contact your local fire department for help in selecting and installing these alarms in your home properly.

Maryland Commission for Effective Community Inclusion of Individuals with Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities

MIEMSS holds a seat on the Maryland Commission for Effective Community Inclusion of Individuals with Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities, created by Governor Martin O’Malley. This Commission will be working on policies and support that will guide first responders in their work with and care for individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities.

The Commission will be holding public meetings for input on what first responders and law enforcement personnel in Maryland need to know when working with people with intellectual and developmental disabilities; what Maryland should provide regarding training for first responders; and what kinds of community outreach activities should first responders conduct in order to raise awareness about effective first responder approaches for interacting with people with intellectual and developmental disabilities. For more information regarding these public meetings, please visit http://www.goccp.maryland.gov/iddc/index.php.
