JAC Meeting – December 9, 2020

Meeting called to order, roll call taken. October JAC Minutes were approved as posted.

At the October JAC meeting, nominations were accepted for a JAC representative to serve on the PRC. At today's meeting, votes were cast for the nominated candidates. The election results, Richard Schenning, Baltimore County will serve as the JAC representative on the Protocol Review Committee. Congratulations were extended to Rich.

OMD Update: A memo to hospital leadership went out this past weekend asking for the EMS transfer of care process to occur within the hospital, tent or other some sort of alternate building. At this point Dr. Chizmar has heard back from several of the hospitals asking if they were specifically asking about them, so they know many of the hospitals have received the message. He views this as letting the hospitals know that they care very deeply and do not want to see patients and EMS ambulances stranded. He wants to let the Committee know that both he and Dr. Delbridge support the fact that you need an efficient offload process and not left in the ambulance for transfer of care.

State and local content for ALS clinicians: The education is available entirely online. As part of the national registry process, there is 15 hours of state and local content requirement. The State has provided 10 out the 15 hours online. The State will not look for that requirement to be met until March 31, 2022. For folks recertifying this year, who have already done traditional refresher and so forth, there is no requirement to do the online MIEMSS content this year but there will be by 2022. If you want to get an early start, feel free you will find it on the online training center.

Regarding the ALS protocol orientation for new paramedics in Maryland for reciprocity: These folks have a national registry card but do not have a Maryland card. Traditionally they would have to come into MIEMSS and take the scan Tron based exam or into the original office. That will be phased out at the end of the month. Those that are already in that pathway, retesting the second time, third time, fourth time, and want to continue to retest, can do so until the end of the year. After that, the online orientation for new ALS clinicians in Maryland is already available at www.emsonlinetraining.org website. A memo went out about that. The point of contact here at MIEMSS is Melissa Meyers. If there are any technical difficulties, Dr. Chizmar said the web browser is Google Chrome. The licensure deadline information for those currently certified, there is an F&Q, folks directed to that document. If a clinician expires December 31, 2020 they will technically not lose their card, they will have 30 days as long as the Governor keeps the State of Emergency in effect.

Dr. Chizmar deferred covering the COVID items until the 11:00 a.m. weekly call. Those in attendance today will be participating on the call.

Melissa Meyers: Dr. Chizmar sent out a memo on Monday announcing the release of the online Protocol Orientation to replace the current Protocol Exam. Candidates will have the option to take either the Protocol Orientation or Protocol Exam until December 31, 2020. On January 1, 2021, all candidates will begin taking the online Protocol Orientation for licensure, the exam will be discontinued. A protocol review is not required to take the Protocol Orientation.

Cyndy Wright-Johnson, EMS-C for Children: Cyndy will send out the stand update to the Committee. She presented a power point regarding pediatric EMS champions and will make it available to the Committee. Additionally, she will send out a screen-by-screen power point for the 2020 National EMS

Assessment Maryland Summary. Cyndy shared the goals for the second component of the pediatric assessment. The two-page document regarding the equipment funding opportunity was displayed.
